University's job experts help Serbian visitors boost training

SWANSEA University careers and employability experts are hosting a group of counterparts from Serbia.

The Serbian experts are in Swansea to get ideas for developing their own services at home.

Pauline McDonald, head of Swansea University's Careers and Employability Service, said: "We're delighted to be welcoming our Serbian colleagues to Swansea.

"We'll be running training sessions with them about careers guidance, especially our online services.

"The idea is that they get the full picture about what our careers work involves.

"They'll have the chance to see our advisers at work, take part in seminars and meet some of our students.

"We'll also be telling them about the Swansea Employability Award, which has really helped our students to show potential employers the skills they can offer."

Marija Jovanovic, a Serbian visitor from the University of Belgrade Centre for Career Development, said: "Our work is aimed at developing career guidance and improving higher education in Serbia.

"The staff are devoted, and the enthusiasm with which they share their knowledge and experience is admirable.

"I believe that the whole group appreciate it very much."

The visiting group includes careers experts and a minister from the Serbian government.

It is run as part of a European Union programme aimed at supporting countries surrounding the EU.
